BETHEL LIONS CLUB LAUNCH ALL-OUT LIGHT BULB CAMPAIGN

The Bethel Lions Club will conduct an all out drive from March 28 to April 11 to sell electric light bulbs to residents, according to an announcement made today by Club President Samuel Bigelow. Every cent of the proceeds will be to aid human sight in the Bethel area.

The light bulbs will be sold in handy project-packs, each containing two 60-watt bulbs, two 75 watt bulbs, and two 100 watt bulbs, at the regular price of two dollars. Every householder can use light bulbs and this drive affords an opportunity to get a good supply, while helping a most worthy cause.

The Lions have been organized to supply friends and neighbors with light bulbs delivered right to their door. Lions Clubs in other areas have had excellent results with their light bulb sales, and President Sam Bigelow has expressed his confidence in the anticipated success of this fund raising campaign.

COMMENTS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE TOWN MANAGER

This year, for the first time, unregistered vehicles may be assessed a personal property tax. The owner of the land where it is found will be responsible for payment. Some municipalities have found this to be an effective way of ridding the countryside of abandoned vehicles. Owners may be given the option of paying the tax on a vehicle they feel has value, disposing of it, or taking a chance on being served a complaint.

If a notice to a landowner is sent and the vehicle is not disposed of in a reasonable length of time, 10 days will be considered reasonable, a complaint will be issued. In the past, excuses have been accepted why the vehicle can not be disposed of, extensions were granted and the vehicle remained where it was found. Too much time has been devoted to checking and rechecking to see if a person was done as he promised. This year, one check will be made of the town to find vehicles, notices will be sent and another check made as to results.

PUBLIC EDUCATION IS VITAL TO EARLY CANCER CONTROL

Public education is the cornerstone of cancer control and it is imperative that this life saving information is given to the public. The public is more conscious of the fight for cancer control during the April drive, but there are forces here in Bethel working on the education during the whole year.

Mrs. Keith Bartlett, the school nurse for school district 44, has been working in cooperation with the Oxford County Cancer Society Unit, showing films to the students of some of the lower grades. The purpose is to inform young people (about 12 years of age) about the risks of cigarette smoking, before they start to smoke. It is hoped that by showing these films and having discussions that the "pre-teens" youngsters will not only refrain from becoming smokers but will help educate parents about this lung cancer which causes more deaths than automobile accidents.

Mrs. Bartlett will work with students from time to time throughout the school year on cancer control, as material is supplied her from the local cancer unit. This is part of the school health education program.

BETHEL, MAINE

GREENWOOD CITY

— Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corres. —

Now it's spring. The change comes as one thirteen on Tuesday. The day didn't look much different than the one before but the calendar says, "Spring".

At the moment that spring was opening its eyes, I stood on Turtle Bridge between the ponds gazing into the swamp lands. I was reminded of the following lines which I took from my scrap book but do not know the author.

"A painting of hope—a slope of arbutus, a delicate pastel of white violets quite unexpected in the arc shadow of the frail bridge over the brook. Look! rainbows trout captured forever in a silver frame; and the name? oh, the name is Spring."

The waters chuckled beneath the bridge, the catkins of the willows were furry as they stood on their amber stems, bits of ice crystals were clinging to the bushes a foot or more from the waters beneath. Old vines brown with age and winter-weariness still were twining 'neath the alders, catbills fuzzy and wind-whipped were in the distance.

I stayed to listen to the songs of the brooks as they rushed from the hills, jubilant with celebration. Their language was new responding to the shift of the sun.

This bogland was quiet, with an air of mystery, waiting . . . waiting for the peepers, and the redwings, and the loons.

There was still snow but with a few warm days one after the other, as well as trees and flowers will melt either into leaves or into song.

The wind called as I was coming back across the patches of snow toward the bar road.

I noticed a goldenrod stem with a gall home by the path. Evidently someone last fall a white, worm like grub answered an add for—

On either side the country lane stood plump goldenrods.

And one kept yowling open house for all the hexapods.

Bettles, ants, and flower flies filled all the golden roams.

While busy bees swept out the halls with cunning little brooms.

And gathered up the yellow dust and packed it on their thighs.

And heavy laden, flew away into the summer skies.

Each day the kindly goldenrod peeped through its leaves below.

Where a baby moth and a wee gall fly each had its bungalow.

Green and bulging on the stem, two symmetrical galls.

Those tiny dwellers ate and slept within the rounded walls.

Until grown up and dressed in wings, when crawling out content.

They hung up little signs that read, "A COZY HOUSE FOR RENT."

The grub who at first fed on the juicy walls turned to a gold-colored egg-shaped little pupa about 1/4 of an inch long. Grown and warm through December storms this little pupa within its gall house kept undisturbed snug and safe as a child in a warm bed.

Open from a round little tunnel which was made when it was a grub with come a gall fly with pretty black hands across its two lace-like wings and fly merrily about in the sunshine.

Facing north toward home, March loved up to its certainty. It was blustery and cold. The air was hurrying everywhere. I wished for the sun to perform its natural drama. Dull indeed to the world without it.

Across the pond I could see the falls talking of the time, responding to the season. Sanborn River less carefree, and more cedate, hinted of the kingfisher's return with his rattling and diving and the redwing's voice in the alders. This live surging water sings while we say the words, "Winter's end. Winter's end."

My duck of the big pond greeted me, not with voice but with shape and motion in its usual place. It hadn't moved an inch since last fall. Probably it has slowed more cars and "fooled" more hunters than one could count. It rises just above the surface of the water, at log's end, which at a distance is so real.

I entered my lower driveway for the first time, except on snowshoes since the snows of fall. I paused to read the silver plate in the rock, sitting 60 feet above sea level, placed there some years ago. Then I took my last "mile" across the beams to the gardens. The irises, tulips and crocuses in slim cheeks were peeping through as well as the green leaves of the sweet Williams.

It was a heart throb to greet spring at the bridge but when I see the robins take wing to the open hillside then my heart will leap. I will know that they will soon be singing by my window at sunrise.

Doris Hayes and Colista Morgan attended the Retired Teachers at Norway on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane Hayes and son and twin daughters were at the Hayes Homestead on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hayes and sons, Gray, also spent the day there.

Ann Holt visited with her friend, Nancy Hutton, over the week end. She also visited her brother, Robert, and family in Windsor.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Morgan were in Lewiston on Thursday.

David Holt was at home from Orono over the week end.

Kella Tamlander was in South Paris on Monday to see her doctor.

Norman Mullett and Stephen Hakala were in Portland, Tuesday.

Tony Silver celebrated a belated birthday, March 8, and the boys of the neighborhood joined him for a party.

Judith Hakala visited Colista Morgan, Sunday afternoon.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT
 Once again the Master of the Great Grange above has entered our order, Dear River Grange, and called our worthy Gater, Pauline Hanson, who the members recognize the sudden and early of our Heavenly Father in calling this sister to her eternal rest.

God sends to us his fairest flowers As reminders to say: "There is comfort to give life beyond our own brief day."

The darkness of the night will pass The morning comes — and then The dear ones we have loved and lost.

Will be with us — again! Resolved that these resolutions of Dear River Grange be sent to the family of Pauline Hanson, Bethel Grange, and a copy be placed on our books.

UPTON

— Mrs. Arline Bernier, Corres. —

Armand Bouffard burned the old building on his place. This was purchased and extensively remodeled by Stephen Morse about 1865, officially named "Lone Pine Farm" but generally known as "The Farm".

The youngest daughter, Bertha, stayed on the farm after she married Bert Judkins and their three children were born there. The large tree in the front yard was grown from a branch taken from a tree growing in Plymouth Rock and brought over by the Pilgrims. If the son who had taken this branch against regulations been younger, I'm sure Grandma would have used it as a switch to smother his most vulnerable spot.

W. W. I. The years I lived in the house as an adult during the time our two oldest daughters were born had receded in the background and memory of the place was as of an elegant mansion which it seemed to me as a child, until recently cousin Barbara wished me to go back with her through the house again when we did with Mrs. Bouffard's permission. I wish she had gone by herself.

The smoke curling from in back of Leslie's house while the house was burning reminded me also of the time more than 40 years ago when smoke came from there following a loud crack during a thunderstorm. When curiosity got the better of the feeling of distress, I went down to find much furniture on the lawn and dad straddling the ridgepole of the building next to the barn which was nearly consumed by fire.

Youngsters, middle-aged and older men and women were running with pails of water from the roadside ditch, passing them to a man on a ladder to a man on a low roof and thence along from man to man, and building to building, until my father poured the water over the flames which were sometimes beneath him and then he threw the empty pail on the ground so it could go around again. These folks saved the rest of the buildings with the odds against them and courage and cooperation.

The Bouffards have built a fine set of modern buildings a short distance from the original ones.

That meeting was brief, lasting only about 3 1/2 hours. Eighteen visitors and several visitors including Robert Martin who served as Moderator, Martin Gaby, a former resident, several part time residents and two afternoons, attended. Fred Judkins read a prepared paper which outlined some of the events and changes during the 26 years he had served as selectman. He touched on other subjects including some dissatisfaction concerning church affairs which has been a growing topic among citizens. This brought remarks by others later in the meeting suggesting that these dissatisfied might attend Church business meetings and voice their opinions where it could carry weight. The Town voted to call the school house to the Brown Company and a minimum price was set. Also, it was voted to negotiate for the lease of Teller Cove. Use of schoolhouse as a municipal building was rejected. The article to appoint a committee for study of construction of a municipal building was looked in a too late and all other articles were passed affirmatively. The amount raised for school was not nearly in half and the rate of board was raised to $10.

A food sale was held after the meeting, benefit of TUPB Club. Melrose Chamber of Farmington and Laurie Dargatzon of Temple visited their parents and attended Town Meeting.

James George, George Scott Jr., Ray Haley, Ken Cyphers and friend also attended the meeting. Ken offered opinions and suggestions during the meeting and at the close, Mr. George expressed his pleasure at being a guest and said he planned to be a resident by another spring and would enjoy being able to take an active part in this "democracy in its purest form".

TSGT. and Mrs. Earl Largease and family of Maryland, Andrew Aron of Connecticut, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Lavalley of Manchester were in town over the week end. Stella Charron was in town briefly with her sister-in-law. She reported that her husband, Adrian, is very sick in the Manchester hospital.

Colon Fuller is in the Norway hospital for treatment and observation. Mrs. Christine Murphy took him down and Elaine accompanied them.

Rev. Larry Shaw held a service at the Upton Church with folks from Rumford, Lewiston and Upton attending. It was my understanding when the church was reorganized a few years ago that it would be open to pastors or leaders of any Judeo-Christian Faith, but now, due partly to a most unfortunate experience of having a pastor who proved to be unpalatable to most if not all, when his purpose appeared to be a thinly veiled political promotion, we are in a position where we pay one pastor for his services and charge those who come in at other occasions. There are many facets of religious learning and regardless of how knowledgeable a leader may be, he cannot have all the answers, nor satisfy all spiritual appetites. To confine one's self to ideas expressed by one pastor is similar to confining one's reading to one author. I do not wish to promote a hassle within the church as nothing serves the purpose of Satan better, but I suggest everyone interested in our church ask and find the answer to these two questions, "To whom does the Church belong?" and "What is its purpose?"

CO-OP CORNER

by Suzi Redman

Mitzi Wheeler is a junior on the Co-op program. She took the Nurses Aide Training course at Rumford Community Hospital. At the present time she is working irregular hours at Andrews Nursing Home in South Paris. This summer she will work there full time.

Mitzi Wheeler

In telling about her job in Rumford, Mitzi mentioned that there was one old woman at the hospital she took care of, who didn't like many people and seldom smiled. Mitzi made friends with her and at the end of the course, the woman kissed her. I commented that it seemed from the interviews that most of the girls had a similar experience with at least one special patient. Mitzi thinks that it is probably because the Nurse Aides were more sympathetic and took time to deal with the patient's individual personality.

But she likes working in the Nursing Home better than regular hospital duty. She says it is kind of a challenge, and more permanent. That is, after you've gotten to know a patient, the person doesn't go home as he would from a hospital. Mitzi really enjoys working with different people, and hopes to keep Co-op in her schedule next year (nursing).

Mitzi likes to cook and sew, go for walks, play with her sister Rosy's dog Dutchess, and draw. In fact she once wanted to be an artist, but decided to keep it as a hobby. She sketches cartoon characters and scenery.

Like many Co-op students, Mitzi says she doesn't have time for clubs at school, but she especially likes Spanish class.

She has three sisters and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynwood Wheeler, of Bethel.

TELSTAR ATTENDS N. H. S. STATE CONVENTION

Eleven members of the Telstar chapter of the National Honor Society attended the N. H. S. state convention held at Brewer High School on Saturday, March 24.

The theme of this year's convention, Youth's Role in Today's World, figured as the subject of the keynote address given by William S. Cohen, Representative to Congress from Maine's 2nd District. Candidates' speeches also reflected the theme. Representing Telstar were Susan Bryant, who ran for State Secretary; Joyce Johnston, who ran for State Treasurer; and Cathy Littlefield, who ran for State Vice President. Although none were victorious, they all acquitted themselves admirably.

Gayle Packard, this year's State Treasurer, participated in planning the convention and presented her treasurer's report during the proceedings.

Workshops were held on the following topics: Curriculum, Ecology and Conservation, School Spirit, College and Its Alternatives, Juvenile Delinquency, N. H. S. Exchanges, Student-Teacher Relationships, N. H. S. Activities, and Student Service in the Community. For the most part, workshop leaders were chosen from
